MISSOULA--

Registration deadline for the "September-in-Summer Orientation Program" at the University of Montana in Missoula is Aug. 1. Orientation dates are Aug. 4-5.

Donna L. Booth, director of orientation and coordinator of academic advising on the Missoula campus, said the orientation program Aug. 4-5 "will enable new and transfer students to see the campus at their own pace and to meet with academic advisers and plan their schedules for the coming year."

The orientation program also is open to parents of incoming students and to prospective students who are just curious about university life in general.

Booth said new students are required to participate in orientation. "so they will be one step ahead in the fall if they attend the summer orientation program in August."

Career workshops, campus tours and visits to student service facilities are all part of the two-day orientation program. The new and transfer students also will be able to register for fall quarter classes.

UM President Richard C. Bowers, other UM administrators and faculty members are scheduled to meet with new students and their parents during the "September-in-Summer Orientation Program."

Highlights of summer orientation activities include a dinner at 7 p.m. Aug. 4 in the University Center Ballroom for new and transfer students, parents and others participating in the orientation program. Dinner entertainment, sponsored by the UM School of Fine Arts and Department of Drama, will feature selections from the musical "Oklahoma."

The American College Test, required of all incoming students, and the music placement tests will be given in the fall, while the mathematics placement tests will be given during the summer orientation Aug. 4-5 and also in the fall.

Cost of participating in the campus orientation program Aug. 4-5 will be $12 per student, including the charge for a barbecue at noon Aug. 4 on the UM Library mall. There will be no charge for parents who wish to participate in the orientation sessions.

During the "September-in-Summer Orientation Program," room accommodations in Jesse Hall, one of two 11-story residence halls on the Missoula Campus, will be $4 per night for each student and $5 per couple per night for parents. Barbecue tickets will be $3.50 for parents. Cost of the dinner Aug. 4 is $4 per person.

Faculty members and UM Advocates, a campus service organization composed of University students, will assist the incoming students and parents during the orientation program Aug. 4-5.

Additional information, orientation brochures and registration cards may be obtained by contacting Donna Booth, Center for Student Development, Room 148 of the Lodge, University of Montana, Missoula, Mont. 59812, or by phoning 243-2835.
